BREAKING NEWS: URGENT -- Building collapses in Manhattan, injuries reported

-, 12.03.2014, 15:27 Time

USPA News - A six-story apartment building in New York City collapsed on Wednesday morning after a large explosion, injuring around a dozen people and prompting a large emergency response, officials and witnesses said. It was not immediately known if anyone was still trapped.

The incident happened at around 9:30 a.m. local time on Wednesday when a large explosion happened at 116th Street and Park Avenue in East Harlem, a neighborhood in the New York City borough of Manhattan. Footage from the scene showed that a part of the six-story building, located close to elevated train tracks, had completely collapsed to the ground floor. A New York Fire Department spokesperson said around a dozen people were injured, including some who were taken to area hospitals.
